Allocation veto upset by House

WASHINGTON AP — The House voted 310 to 113 today to override President Ford's veto of a $45 billion budget labor, health, welfare and related programs. Democrats an early victory in their election-year against Ford's economy proposals.

The override issue now shifts to the Senate, which is expected to vote Wednesday. Democrats in that body were optimistic.

The House vetoed the bill Dec. 19 because it was nearly $1 billion above his budget recommendations. He called it "a bad example of... unchecked spending."

The vote came only six days after the President had vetoed the bill for the next fiscal year, urging Congress to hold to a tight $394.2 billion spending ceiling.

Republicans pleaded for the veto to be sustained as an indication of Congress' intention to show restraint on the budget proposals and aim for balance within three years.

This is the first money bill of the session," Rep. Robert C. Darden of Illinois said. "We are setting the spending tone of the session."

Sen. Charles McClellan, D-Md., said a vote to override would be a special interest which they could get what they want from Congress.

Democratic leaders only hours before the vote, were reported they had only a fighting chance to side. But Republicans joined 261 Democrats to side a margin 28 above the two-thirds needed to side. Voting to sustain the veto were 92 Republicans and Democrats.

House members agreed that this veto would be one of the most difficult to overcome. The bill funds a variety of politically appealing programs, including child health care, research on several major diseases, nutrition programs for the aged, vocational education and the community services undertakings are the remnants of President Lyndon B. Johnson's War on Poverty.

Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., handling the bill, said it would an average increase of 7 per cent over amounts appropriated a year earlier for the same program.

That barely provides for the inflation cost—just 3.5 per cent," Flood told the House. "It is exactly the 7 per cent of inflation, no more, no less... it provides a minimum of funding."

Postmaster says subsidies needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Money from taxpayers in the form of bigger postal subsidies is the alternative to additional increases in postal rates, Postmaster General Benjamin Rumsfeld said today.

He said private companies could charge lower prices than the Postal Service in delivering to high population density areas, leaving the Postal Service with more costly delivery areas. He said the Postal Service would have to adopt variable mail rates to compete against private competition.

Bailar said repeal of the laws establishing the Postal Service monopoly on first class mail "would lead to an end of unified postal rates across the nation."

Bailar said the Senate Post Office Committee.

Recent rash of mail-related accidents led to the installation of caution light at crosswalk between the Halls and the Building on 1230 North.

According to BYU Security, Robert Kelshaw, the temporary solution being tried by BYU Security.

Increased number of pedestrian accidents and the installation of additional caution lights are among recent solutions being tried by BYU Security.

Identified the main problem areas as the walk east of the Wilkinson Center, the campus walk between the Knight Building and the crosswalk between the Halls and the Building.

Students were injured in pedestrian-related accidents during December according to Kelshaw.

Several accidents have occurred in which the pedestrian was at fault, he added.

"For this reason, I have instructed my staff to strictly enforce pedestrian regulations," he said.

Kelshaw explained that campus pedestrian regulations prohibit jaywalking or crossing the street at locations other than designated crosswalks. These regulations also require pedestrians to obey signs and streetlights.

Concerning the crosswalk east of the Wilkinson Center, Kelshaw said if students persist in ignoring the lights he will recommend everyone be forced to use the overpass.

ASBYU court rules against two student vice presidents

by
DON SMURTHWAITE

ASBYU officers Dan Morgan and Jim Pedersen stand to lose their jobs if two Supreme Court decisions are carried out.

In a decision reached Tuesday, the Court found Morgan in violation of the ASBYU Constitution and recommended he be dismissed from office by ASBYU Pres. Bob Henrie.

In Pedersen's case, the Court determined that the 2.25 s.p.a. minimum requirement is on a semester basis, and any officer failing to attain that level should be dismissed.

Pedersen may now voluntarily resign or again go to the Supreme Court for a specific ruling on his case, said Chief Justice Gordon Smith. Tuesday's ruling by the court was a general ruling on grade requirements for student officers.

Morgan protests

Morgan, who was not present when the decision was made, appeared in the courtroom soon after and protested to the justices. He maintained that "an appointed official cannot remove an elected official."

Pedersen was quiet when he learned of the decision. He conferred with his adviser for several minutes, and then walked away from the group.

Later, Morgan again walked into the courtroom and said that the justices were "digging their own graves," then left.

Both Pedersen and Morgan said they would appeal their cases.

The Supreme Court justices decided unanimously in both cases.

"Speaking as a person, I can feel for the individuals," said Smith. "But if the ASBYU Constitution means anything we've got to stand by and execute our responsibility."

Interprets strictly

"We are to interpret the Constitution according to the letter and the spirit and that's exactly what's been done," added Smith.

Both Morgan and Pedersen seemed surprised and upset about the decisions.

"I feel the judicial is completely out-of-bounds on their interpretation," said Morgan. "This gives them complete control over the students. I think it's a power move."

Pedersen also felt the decision unjust. "I'm dismayed at the ASBYU Supreme Court decision that has taken a stand opposite to the one adhered to by Dean Cameron," he said.

Dean of College Life J. Elliot Cameron said Tuesday in a campus memorandum that he felt a student body officer's grades should be cumulative over the three semesters the student was in office.

Denied due process?

Vic Miller, ASBYU student defender, said he felt Morgan had been denied due process. Miller also said that he believed Morgan would fight the decision.

Pedersen also will appeal the decision, although he was unsure of the channels. "I'm going to sit down and evaluate the facts and see what comes up," he said.

The act of dismissal for Morgan and possibly Pedersen will be the responsibility of Bob Henrie, according to Geoff Lewis, Supreme Court justice.

Citations issued at roadblock

Approximately 36 citations for violation of safety inspection, non-resident permits and frosted windows were issued Tuesday at a roadblock at 700 E. 840 North.

Patrolman Robert Halvorsen was stationed at the roadblock to check for violators. The citations were issued within a two-hour period.

Utah state law requires safety inspection for all vehicles. Cars may be inspected at local service stations for a $3.25 fee which includes a sticker.

Non-resident permits are required for out-of-state vehicles and may be obtained at the BYU Information Booth located across the street from Helaman Halls on 1230 North.

Patrolman Halvorsen said policemen are especially looking for drivers who have not scraped their windows. A great number of citations were issued to drivers specifically for that violation.

Utah House passes bill for more judges

By GARY J. MOES
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — District courts centered in Provo, Salt Lake City and Ogden would get one additional judge each in a bill passed by the Utah House and sent to the Senate Tuesday.

The House also agreed to consider later a bill that would take Juab County out of the 5th Judicial District, headquartered in Cedar City, and put it in the 4th District, centered in Provo.

Meanwhile, the Senate approved a House bill revising Utah's inheritance tax structure to save Utahans an estimated $2.5 million.

Backers said it would encourage the wealthy to retire in Utah who help save family farms. Opponents said it is tax relief primarily for the rich.

The tax reduction goes next to the governor, who already has a bill approved Monday eliminating sales taxes on prescription medicines at an annual cost to the state of $2.5 million.

The House set as a special order for 10:30 a.m.

today consideration of a citizen-initiated bill providing for recall of public officials.

The judgeship bill met opposition from some Republicans. Supporters said those against it only wanted to wait until after the election in the hopes a Republican governor could make the appointments. Republican leader Lorin Pace of Salt Lake City told colleagues, however, the immediate need for additional judges is strong and they should support the bill.

Defense chief supports record military budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld warned Congress Tuesday that the United States must act now to reverse a military power shift toward the Soviet Union.

Rumsfeld, in his first formal report to Congress since becoming the nation's defense chief, urged approval of the Pentagon's record $101.1 billion proposed budget.

The secretary said U.S. forces currently are strong enough to balance Soviet strength, but he warned that the Russians have been making substantial gains in nuclear and conventional forces. The Soviets display no signs of slowing down this build-up, he said.

Rumsfeld delivered a 313-page report in making his first formal appearance since his confirmation as defense chief. There was no sign of any disagreement with the policies of James R. Schlesinger, fired as defense secretary by President Ford after he publicly criticized congressional cuts in the current defense budget.

Like Schlesinger, Rumsfeld said missiles capable of hitting Soviet targets with pinpoint accuracy are needed despite the claims of critics that they give the appearance of U.S. intent to make the first strike in a nuclear war.

To keep pace with Soviet nuclear developments, Rumsfeld indicated the United States will need a larger fleet of Trident submarines, each costing $1.5 billion and armed with 24 first formal appearance since his confirmation as defense chief. There was no sign of any disagreement with the policies of James R. Schlesinger, fired as defense secretary by President Ford after he publicly criticized congressional cuts in the current defense budget.

Cautioning that "there has been a gradual shift in the power balance over the past 10 years," Rumsfeld said $65 billion must be spent over the next decade for improvements in U.S. strategic bombers, missiles and nuclear submarines. The fiscal 1976 budget calls for increasing spending of $8.9 billion.

The Soviet Union, he said, now has 1,500 land-based missiles compared with 1,054 such missiles in the U.S. arsenal. Aboard their submarines, the Russians outnumbered the United States in missiles, 850 to 656.

The United States has long been ahead of the Russians in development and development of multiple warheads, but the gap, now 8,900 to 3,500 has been narrowing, Rumsfeld said. While the United States still leads in numbers of strategic bombers, Rumsfeld said, the Soviets have begun deploying their new supersonic Backfire bomber, which the defense chief said, "has the capability to strike the United States."

Rumsfeld also said he would like continued development of a missile program known as "MX," as a possible replacement for the Minuteman land-based missile now installed in various underground sites. MX would be mobile, although larger and more accurate than the Minuteman.

ASBYU hopefuls eye filing deadline

By DON SMURTHWAITE

Students seeking ASBYU offices should file for candidacy as soon as possible, according to Roxi Stanley, of the Elections Committee.

Official deadline for filing is Feb. 19, but Miss Stanley warns it "will be a mad rush towards the end."

Miss Stanley, a junior in pre-law from Ticonderoga, N.Y., said there have been several filings for student body positions already.

"Women seem to be taking more interest in running for office this year," said Miss Stanley. "And that's exciting."

Officers up for grabs in the coming election include ASBYU Pres., executive vice-pres., and the vice-presidencies of the following offices: social, academics, women, organizations, culture, finance, athletics, and community services.

To file for office, a student must fill out an application available in the Elections Committee office, 115 B, E-LWC. A student must also meet certain grade and class load criteria and adhere to the honor code, Miss Stanley said.

Primary elections will be March 3, 4, and 5. Final elections will be March 10, 11 and 12.

"Our goal is to get 51 per cent of the students out," she said. "We want the officers to say they were elected by a majority of the students, which has never happened before."

A budget of about $1,000 has been approved by the following offices: social, academics, women, organizations, culture, finance, athletics, and community services.

Chris Tew, a junior in communications from Orem, is heading the project. Posters and radio spots are among the Elections Committee's tactics, said Miss Stanley.

Responses of students questioned at that crosswalk as to why they did or did not follow the light fell into two major categories:

"I always wait for the green light because I like to abide by the laws," or "There is nothing wrong with crossing on a red light when the street is clear, is there?"

Kelshaw said negotiations for the new blinking light were initiated after concerned students living in Helaman Halls organized a petition for a stop sign to be posted at the crosswalk. He said he welcomes all suggestions for solving the pedestrian-related problems.

Joseph Smith's life

Journal gives insight

Newly discovered writings of Lucy Mack Smith add new insight into the life and times of Joseph Smith, according to Dr. Richard L. Anderson, Tuesday's forum speaker.

Dr. Anderson, a BYU professor of history and ancient scripture, said the new manuscript offers personal glimpses of Joseph Smith in family situations.

He said the writings are occasionally erroneous, but generally they agree with dates, names and other details found in accepted historical records of the times.

He did note, however, that sometimes Sister Smith would forget dates, or be "off by a couple of years." He said she tended to remember names better than dates or places, and of some 200 names mentioned in her journals, most have been verified in other records.

Dr. Anderson said Sister Smith was helped in her work by Martha Corey and her husband, Howard, who served as scribes. He told of the manner in which the journals were written and revised, detailing the Corey's role in their production.

Dr. Anderson also said Brigham Young, who once suggested revision of Sister Smith's work, was seeking not to avoid history, but rather to stress accuracy.

Sister Smith includes many things in her journals that Joseph never published, Anderson said.

"Her insights are especially valuable because she uniquely knew the moral forces of his formative years," Dr. Anderson said. "Intimate verifications with known historic records show the accuracy of her work."

He also said her writing reveals the industrious nature of the Smith family, her reaction to the tragedies which stripped her of her sons and husband, and the love Joseph and his wife, Emma, had for each other.

Dr. Anderson also bore his testimony that Joseph Smith is a prophet.

Student help needed

Increased student involvement on university committees is a primary concern of student government this semester, according to ASBYU President Henrie.

Appointed by ASBYU to help formulate policies. Among those committees which deal with student interest are the Entertainment Film Subcommittee, the Forums Committee, the Bookstore Board of Directors, the Code of Honor Committee, the Student Financial Aid Council and the Student Housing Adjustment Board.

Help needed

Henrie said any student wishing to serve as a representative or otherwise help should contact his office. "We can't guarantee they will be the ASBYU representative, but we'll find a place for them," said Henrie.

"We're placing special emphasis on these committees," Henrie continued, "because we feel this is what student government is all about. Students need to realize that they have the opportunity for input into most facets of university life."

"It has been a good learning experience," Scott

Madsen, student representative of the Housing Adjustment Board, said. "I feel I'm more than just a token representative, that my inputs carry some weight."

"We feel it's our responsibility," added Henrie, "to let students know what committees are open for input, who their representatives are and to advise students of current issues being considered by the committees."

Student voice

"Many students complain that student government is not effective because students have no real voice in the actual policy-making of the university," said Darrel Frost, administrative assistant to Henrie. "We feel the best avenue for student input into the policy-making committees is through the student representatives who have been chosen to sit on these committees."

Henrie said that students at BYU must realize they do have a voice, but it is often not exercised because students are not aware of the appropriate input channels.

Student input is "often more valuable than other committee members' input because students are the only ones who can see issues through a student perspective," concluded Henrie.

Strike settled, busing begins

By The Associated Press
Teachers in Pittsburgh sang "Happy Days are Here Again" after ratifying a new contract that ended an eight-week strike, while a handful of peaceful protesters in Detroit chanted "Stop Busing Now" as court-ordered integration of city schools began. The 3,400 public school teachers in Pittsburgh voted Monday to accept a new 30-month contract, clearing the way for 62,000 pupils to return to classes today. The vote was 1,468 to 657.

The pact offers salary increases that the school board figures will average $3,555 for each teacher. "I'm very pleased with the results," said Albert Fondy, president of the Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers, after announcing the ratification vote.

Pittsburgh teachers, who now earn between $8,700 and $16,000 per year, will get $400 in April and additional raises over the next two years that will bring them to a range of $10,500 to $20,300 by March 1978.

In Detroit, court-ordered integration of the city's schools started Monday with the busing of elementary school children and expanded today as classes resumed in the city's secondary schools. Detroit, the biggest city in the country to implement court-ordered desegregation, is busing almost 10 percent of the 247,000 pupils in its schools. About 75 percent of the total school population is black.

School officials called the first day of court-ordered busing a success, even though more than 40,000 of the 127,000 elementary pupils were absent.

Supporters of the city's largest anti-busing groups kept their children home Monday in an indefinite "yellow flu" boycott. There were no incidents at the schools and only three small demonstrations against the integration program.

Meanwhile in Boston, six white pupils intent on showing their anti-busing sentiment were arrested on trespass charges after they deliberately went to the wrong classrooms and were ordered to go to the correct classrooms or leave the school.

Police Lt. Robert Bradley said three boys and three girls were arrested on trespass charges after they deliberately went to the wrong classrooms and were ordered to go to the correct classrooms or leave the school.

Cross-cultural media Language Center topic

The Language Research Center will conduct a brain-storming session on significant strengths and weaknesses in media used cross-culturally, Thursday in 347 ELWC, according to Dr. James Taylor, LRC director.

Interested persons will discuss problems encountered in communicating messages through the media across and within cultures, and solutions and resources found to be most useful and effective.

V. Lynn Tyler, associate director of the LRC, has just returned from conducting similar open seminars on the east and west coasts. According to Tyler, "We are identifying specific misuses and missed cues which most often offend and confuse, or cues which seem always to be successful." With a grant from BYU Research Division, the LRC is investigating what has already been done in the field, and plans to analyze communicative breakdowns in the media.

Auto mechanics class shifts into gear tonight

Experience and instruction in the basic principles of automotive maintenance is available to both men and women in a six-week course beginning today at BYU. "Auto Maintenance for Men and Women" is limited to 22 students in each of two sections, according to instructor Dennis Peterson of the Department of Industrial Education. Section A will be held Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Section B on Saturdays from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. in B-21 in the quonset hut east of the new Engineering Sciences and Technology Building.

The course is sponsored by Special Courses and Conferences.

The course will include a study of causes of tire wear and how to purchase tires and batteries; how to repair brakes; pack wheel bearings; recognize worn ball joints, kingpins, and shock absorbers; study the principles of the ignition system and how to perform a tune-up; how to prepare the car for a safety inspection; and general maintenance and how the engine works.

Concert tickets going...

bulk of the tickets for the Feb. 5 diamond concert have been sold. The mail-in system which Scott's, BYU special events scheduling terms a "a luck-type thing." According to Williams, all of the more 600 chair seats as well as over bench seats have been sold. All below the concourse is sold out, and the 34 seats above the concourse, behind the stage are all that got a verbal commitment from Diamond people that they will 60-degree show." Dan Morgan, Social vice president, said, "Students are unaware that the will be played to the whole Center audience, he added. "ing is awarded based on the day of the ticket request here at It would be impossible to check the postmark on each letter," Williams said.

According to Williams, there is "no perfect way to distribute tickets." Elements of chance enter into the postal system, including mailing point, sorting at the post office, and even the way the mail sack is jostled during transportation.

Ticket requests mailed from the Provo post office reach BYU fastest, he said. If mailed here on campus, they go to the Provo post office first. They are sorted, then sent to the BYU ticket office in the Marriott Center.

"Ticket requests mailed on campus generally take an extra day to get here," Williams said. Campus mail is not used in the mail-ins because it isn't set up to handle such a mail volume, he said.

Seats on the playing floor immediately in front of the stage are sold first. Chair seats below the concourse are awarded next, the distribution radiating outward in expanding arcs.

When seating to the front and sides of the stage is sold out, below-concourse seating is next booked. Last to be reserved are above-concourse seats behind the stage, Williams said.

The people behind and to the sides of the stage will not receive the full impact of the light show and performance, said Williams. That is unavoidable, he said. "We are providing top-notch, No. 1 entertainment for a very minimal fee," he said.

According to Williams, the mail-in system creates 10 times more work for the ticket distribution office than does the over-the-counter method.

A model of this Paul Revere statue is part of the display of works by sculptor Cyrus E. Dallin.

Statue display in Springville

Twenty pieces of sculpture created by Springville native Cyrus E. Dallin are on display at the Springville Art Museum and can be seen through December.

Among the sculptor's best-known pieces in the display is a model of the bronze cast of Paul Revere which is found in Boston, Mass.

Dallin, who died in 1944, sculpted such works as the angel Moroni on the Salt Lake Temple and Massasoit, now displayed in the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Best known for his equestrian statues of the American Indian, Dallin also created statues of patriots and ideal subjects. His heroic-size statue of Paul Revere near the Old North Church in Boston represents Dallin's 57-year struggle to get Boston to fulfill its promise to erect the monument.

Dallin left Springville at age 18 and studied his art at the Julian Academy and the Ecole des Beaux in Paris. He was an instructor of the art in the Massachusetts School of Art in Boston for 40 years.

The display officially opened Saturday with a reception that featured the BYU Intertribal Choir performing songs and dance as part of the "Indians and the Bicentennial" presentation.

The display features 75 photographs and memorabilia of Dallin and his work through the years. The museum is open Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday, 2-5 p.m. Admission is free.

Y jazz musicians to play Thursday

That "big band" sound with jazz styling describes Synthesis SRO. The group will perform its only concert of the semester Thursday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

Under the direction of Newell Dayley, assistant professor of music, Synthesis has gained a nationwide reputation as one of the finest jazz, jazz-rock and improvisation groups among collegiate circles. It is a union of some of the finest instrumentalists on campus, who are not only adept in performance and showmanship, but who are also competent composers, arrangers and improvisers, Dayley said.

With the use of bare minimal scoring, each member of the group "fills in" the total music sound with just the right jazz feeling, a talent that takes hours of training and development to master, he noted. The group tours extensively, not only as Synthesis-SRO, but also as the jazz-rock backup for the Young Ambassadors.

Singers to perform

The University of Southern California's Chamber Singers, under the direction of Dr. James H. Vail, will present a concert of choral music today at 8 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

Their program features composers such as Monteverdi, Josquin des Pres, Byrd, Distler, Brahms, Schumann, Bartok, Stravinsky, and Page, as well as spirituals and songs from folk traditions.

Annual tours have taken the USC Chamber Singers around continental USA and to Mexico. They first toured Hawaii three years ago. In 1964, the State Department sponsored the Chamber Singers in an extended tour of Western Europe and Israel.

For job help

1976 grads must app

By JANET SMALLEY
Universe Staff Writer

Students planning to graduate in April or August, need to register with the Placement Center.

According to Wayne Hansen, director of the Placement Center, seniors, graduate students and two-year degree candidates are the people the center is interested in seeing immediately.

Hansen explained that the students' chances are much better if they use the center to find their first job. He added that "it should not be the only resource the student should use, but they should use it to supplement their efforts."

He listed the procedures that should be followed. First, a packet should be picked up at the Placement Center, D-240 ASB, which should be filled out and returned.

Upon return of the packet, Hansen said, interviews with various company recruiters are scheduled by the center for the student, matching up qualifications with offers open.

Workshops offered

Workshops are offered by the center to give valuable information for getting a job. Students can sign up to attend a general orientation workshop, where the center's services are further explained. Also in this general workshop, on how to begin one's own job hunting is given, Hansen said.

Two other workshops are offered for further information and help, resume writing and interviewing procedures. Students can sign up for these and get help in knowing to expect in interviews and writing resumes for a job offer.

The Placement Center also has an Information Center. Hansen, This has literature on various companies around country, such as annual reports and recruiting mail. "Students should know something about every company they interview with," said Hansen.

Recruiting varies

The amount of recruiting being done on campus this year was explained by Hansen. "Recruiting is seasonal," he said, "and varies with the economy. When there are a lot of jobs and the economy is up, a lot of recruiting is done."

As compared with other college graduates, Hansen said, he felt that BYU graduates find it any more difficult to get a job. He felt that possibly "students here are more mobile than other universities. Many times there is not enough help keep them."

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressing grave concern about international consequences of fighting in Angola, President Ford pleaded with the House today to join the Senate in voting a ban on continued military aid to Western-backed factions.

The House was expected to vote the ban when it took up a $90-billion defense appropriation bill later in the day. The bill contains the Senate-approved ban on the use of U.S. funds for the fighting in Angola.

BYU women's basketball team to face Wyoming Saturday

Pro Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "It's just go down to the fire hydrant and turn left," laughed Mike Boryla as he described the home recipe pass play that sparked the National Football Conference's 23-20 victory over the American Conference in the Pro Bowl.

Boryla brought the play, known to the huddle only as the "Mike Special," from Philadelphia, where he was a sometime starter for the Eagles.

The "Mike Special" and the "Hart Special," also named for its creator, NFC quarterback Jim Hart of the St. Louis Cardinals, produced the two touchdowns that won the nationally televised game Monday night.

"I hadn't thrown the football for three weeks until practice Tuesday," Boryla said, "so I wasn't in real good shape."

But the shape looked fine as he lofted a 14-yard scoring pass to Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals with 3:10 remaining. That put the underdog NFC within striking distance at 20-16.

On the next drive, Metcalf's teammate, Mel Gray, elbowed under a Boryla toss in a crowded end zone for the game's final score with just 1:09 left to play.

The BYU women's basketball team will have an opportunity this weekend most BYU women haven't had. It will play in the Marriott Center on Saturday.

The cagers will take the floor at 2 p.m. against Wyoming, before the men's JV and varsity teams play their games that night.

On Friday, the women will face northern Colorado at 7:30 p.m. on the main floor of the Fieldhouse.

Improved Although the Cougar women had to settle for a 64-61 loss to Boise State last Friday, every game statistic improved over the previous week against Utah. The only exceptions were personal fouls, which remained the same, and the second half field goal percentage.

Unfortunately, these two exceptions decided the game. BYU shot a high 52 per cent from the field during the first half, which they dominated until the last two minutes of the half.

With tough defensive positions and good ball handling, especially by Debbie Bennett, BYU led by six points.

In the final two minutes of the first half, however, the Cougars lost their lead, increased their turnovers and said, Provoan Don Valgardson will see action as an outfielder, and Doug Drew and Clair Woodbury will help bolster the depth of the pitching staff.

Rounding out the team are four freshmen who have shown great promise in early practices. They include pitchers Tyler Steinbach and Doug Drew, and catcher-outfielder Marc Thomas.

The Cougars' schedule this year includes participation in two of the top college baseball tournaments in the nation. They will play in the Riverside National Collegiate Tournament in California in late March, and will travel to Tempe, Ariz., for the Best in the West Tournament in early April.

BYU has won the Northern Division of the WAC for the last nine seasons and Coach Tuckett says that the stiffest competition within the division will come from the Wyoming Cowboys. Also competing in the Northern Division are Utah and Colorado State.

The winner of the Northern Division will compete with the Southern Division leader in a playoff to determine the champion of the Western Athletic Conference. Arizona and Arizona state are expected to fight it out for the division title in the south, with New Mexico and UTEP rounding out the division.

BYU fans will have their first opportunity to see the basketballers in action when they open the home season on April 5 against Washington State, expected to be one of the top teams in the nation this year.

Rogers, Tim Anderson, and Cam Killebrew.

Also on the team this season are three transfer students who should be a great help, Coach Tuckett missed their shots to trail at the half, 38-39.

Outside shooting BSU defended its goal exceptionally well, forcing the Cougars to shoot from the outside, which they did successfully during the first half. The Cougars penetrated the defense in the second half but were unable to score, falling to a 28 per cent field goal average, their lowest of any half this season.

BSU's Elaine Elliott pumped in 24 points for a 62 per cent field goal average at the game's end.

After a disappointing game last week, sophomore Jan Peterson was back in her aggressive style against the Broncos and scored 17 points for BYU for an excellent 80 per cent average from the field.

Showing fine teamwork, freshman Mona Stevens and senior Miss Bennett scored 12 points each and Jeanne Tuft tallied 11 points.

Rebounding BYU's Terrie McAdam, who fouled out of the game with three minutes left, led in rebounds with a total of 10.

The Cougars had six more personal fouls charged against them than did the Broncos, and doubled the number of Boise State turnovers, 22-11.

Much of BYU's turnover trouble came from their fast break strategy which demands excellent ball control.

Swimcats, UNLV vie Saturday

The BYU swim team will host Nevada-Las Vegas on Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Richards Building pool.

The Cougars are preparing for the WAC championships to be held the first week of March. "The dual meets (which BYU is now participating in) are more prestigious than anything," said Coach Tim Powers.

BYU will enter the league meet as one of three favorites along with Utah and Arizona. The Cougars have been turning in the best times in the WAC so far this season.

The Cats overpowered Utah Saturday, capturing 10 of 13 events en route to a 72-41 victory. BYU was led by Mark McGregor and John Sorich.

The Cougars have been turning in the best times in the WAC so far this season. The Cats overpowered Utah Saturday, capturing 10 of 13 events en route to a 72-41 victory.

BYU was led by Mark McGregor and John Sorich. Both victories were paced by McGregor, who swam a 46.3 in the freestyle relay and a 46.8 in the medley relay.

Sorich finished 20 seconds ahead of Utah's best in the 1,000-yard freestyle, winning with a time of 9:44. Coach Powers said it was a good time in the high altitude.

Powers said he was pleased with the team's performance. The Cougar swimmers have been practicing twice daily, training in four hours or more each day, Powers added.

Hoosiers hold top spot in poll

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Indiana continues its domination of The Associated Press Top 20, receiving all but one of the first-place ballots from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

In the shuffle behind the Hoosiers, Marquette, Nevada-Las Vegas and North Carolina moved up one spot each week to the Nos. 2, 3 and 4 positions, as Maryland, second a week ago, lost to Clemson and North Carolina last week and dropped to seventh.

Also taking a nosedive following losses were UCLA, from sixth to 12th; St. John's, from ninth to 14th; and Wake Forest, from 14th all the way out of the Top 20.

Indiana boosted its record to 16-0 by beating Purdue and Minnesota last week, then notched victory No. 17 Monday night — an 88-72 decision over Iowa. The Hoosiers held a solid lead over Marquette, 1,198 points to 970.

Marquette scored easy victories over Xavier of Ohio, Creighton and Fordham last week to boost its record to 14-1, while Nevada Las Vegas, 20-0, whipped Nevada-Reno twice and picked up the other first-place ballot.

Rutgers, seventh last week, jumped to fifth with a 15-0 record while Washington, 16-1, won twice at Hawaii and moved up from eighth to sixth.

Reception to honor Y grid star

A former BYU defensive lineman will be awarded an honorary membership in the BYU Young Men Club tonight at a club open house in the Skyroom, ELWC, at 8 p.m.

The club will present Paul Linford with the first honorary membership given in four years. The last honorary membership was given to Paul James, KSL sportscaster, according to Steve Nisse, president of the club.

Linford was an instrumental force in BYU's WAC victory in 1974, said Nisse. Since that time he has played with several professional clubs.

Interested students are invited to attend the open house, Nisse said.

Liotart on team SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Sounders of the North American Soccer League have announced the signing of veteran midfielder Hank Liotart for the 1976 season.

The naturalized American was a member of the U.S. National Team last year.
